THE GATLING N -This new and formidable instrument of war, the invention of R. J. Gatling, of this city, was tried vesterday in front of the State House, in the presence of Governor Morton, Adjutant General Noble, Capt. Sturm, of the Arsenal, and many other military gentle men and citizens. It is a rotary gun, with six barrels. It is loaded from a supply of cartridges in a "hopper," so to call it, and the simple turaing of a crank places the charge and fires barrel after barrel continually and with greater or less rapidity as the crank is faster or slower turned. We were told that it could be made to fire two hundred times a minute. The gun exhibited vesterday is but a model, as it were, merely to exemplify the principle upon which it is constructed and to demonstrate the execution of which it is capable. The results of the trial Vajen's Hardware Store, in charge of ROBERT S. SMITH. were highly satisfactory to the scientific, military and distinguished gentlemen who witnessed it.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT .- Night before last, about ten o'clock, Marion Smith, from Hendricks county, a soldier just volunteered, was induced by a man whom he did not know to accompany him in a stroll along Washington street towards White river bridge. Some distance beyond the canal John Hicks, charged with burglary on the the man suddenly turned upon Smith, felled him with a slung shot, inflicting several most serious blows upon the head, robbing him and leaving him senseless. After a time Smith recovered sufficiently to stagger back on Washington street but the defendant waived an examination and some distance when he again fell and was picked up by the watchmen in a state of unconsciousness and conveyed to the city quarters. In the morning he was sufficiently recovered to give the state ment of the affair as above. He, however, could give the police no clue by which to track the perpetrator. He was, under the direction of Dr. Bobbs, removed, and is now under treatment, lying very critically.

> MURDER - Night before last Lewis Chabone, a Frenchman, employed at Burt's Dining Saloon, on Illinois street, was, while going home on Ea-t street, about 11 o'clock, murdered. He was passing an alley on Market street, when he was suddenly as aulted and his jugular severed. His cries of distress caused persons in the vicinity to throw up their windows, and he was seen to reel and stagger as a drunken man until he fell near the corner of East street. Shortly two men came up, lifted him and called for the watch. Presently four or five others appeared, and it was found that the unfortunate man's life was extinct. Morning revealed that at every step he had taken from the alley to where he fell the blood had spouted and gushed crimsoning the sidewalk as if with an almost steady stream.

The verdict of the Coroner's jury, rendered vesterday morning, was that the deceased came to his death by the hands of some person or per-

This is a very mysterious affair. The deceased was not robbed. Four dollars and other valuables were found upon him. He is represented as having been honest and industrious. He was a confectioner as well as cook, and had worked for Mr. Parrisett, the confectioner on Illinois street, as well as for Mr. Burt. He had accumulated property. He was a member of Philoxenian Lodge, No. 44, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He leaves a family.

CONGRESSIONAL. WASHINGTON, May 28.

SENATE -Mr. Wilson's amendment was rejected by 27 majority. Mr. Sumner offered an amendment taxing per sons claiming service or labor for life of any such person the sum of ten dollars each.

After a discussion, he modified it, making it read five dollars each for all persons held by corporations, societies, or persons, but such persons not to be sold to pay said tax not to apply to Mr. Sherman offered a substitute for Sumner's amendment to tax cotton one cent per pound.

Rejected-15 to 22. Mr. Hickman offered an amendment that the tax is not to be collected in the States where the gradual emancipation system is in force. Pending the question, the Senate adjourned.

Washington, May 29. SENATE -Mr. Willer called up the memorial of the Legislature of Virginia with reference to the division of that State, and requesting the Senators and Representatives to use their influence to secure the admission of the new State of Western Virginia. He referred to the manner in which the atlegiance of the State was transferred to the rebellion in secret session and without consulting the people, and to the action of the people of North Western Virginia remaining loval to the Union, and torming a separate govern-

He claimed that this feeling for a division of the State was no new thing. It had been frequently urged by the people of the State. Reason and justice were both in favor of it. There were a sufficient number of inhabitants there, and Western Virginia was completely divided from the eastern half by the Allegheny Mountains, Nature seems to have divided the two. Commerce and industry both demand a separation. There has never been but little commercial interconrse between Western and Eastern Virginia The difference of the social institutions and habits of both indicate separation. Slavery can not exist in Western Virginia, and why should the people of that section be compelled to be subected to a system of laws calculated for slavery which exists in Virginia. The geographical po sition, climate, natural productiveness and moral and religious sentiments of the people absolutely forbid the existence of slavery in Western Virginia. He contended that the proposed State was rich in mineral and other resources and would make a wealthy and prosperous State.

The memorial was referred to the Committee on Territories. The tax bill was then taken up, the question being on Mr. Henderson's amendment, that the proposed tax on slaves shall not be levied in any State which has adopted the system of gradual emancipation-yeas 15, navs 20.

Mr. Fessenden offered an amendment to reduce the proposed tax on slaves from five dollars to two dollars each, being sufficiently high in the present condition of things.
